

Beside the fact that large media conglomerates owning more and more radio/tv/newspapers is bad for democracy, the cost to small business people like myself has and will continue to price me out of the advertising market. As an example, in 5 years the rates have doubled for newspaper ads & radio spots, while the quality and coverage has dropped considerably. When will the FCC step in and help the small businessman? Stand up for democracy? Or is the FCC bought and paid for by big corporations?
